

“11 I’d Like To Know – 2020 – Pastor Bohr & Pastor Murray” was posted by secretsunsealed on YouTube on 9/30/20. In this video C. A. Murray and Stephen Bohr of Secrets Unsealed answer “Bible” questions which both men try to answer using their fake bible; i.e., the New King James Version (NKJV). One of the questions, “Does the Bible forbid us to eat Duck meat?” came up about 19:53. Their conclusion is that duck meat is probably a clean food because allegedly there is no biblical prohibition against eating birds with webbed feet.

Gentlemen, you are a bit confused about the question on duck meat. I agree that the eating of flesh food is not best but that wasn’t the question. The question was about DUCK MEAT.

There are some problems with your explanations from Leviticus 11 and Deuteronomy 14. You would have been less confused if you had both been using the Protestant Bible. You both seem to be agreed that there is no mention about not eating birds with “webbed feet.” Right in what you call “the Bible” in both Leviticus 11 and Deuteronomy 14 it says not to eat sea gull. Sea gulls have webbed feet.

There’s something else you probably didn’t comprehend because you aren’t biologists. Your, “the Bible,” the New King James Version (NKJV), says not to eat the ostrich. I’m aware that the ostrich is a lot bigger than chickens, turkeys, peacocks, etc., but their dietary habits are similar and they don’t have webbed feet. If the ostrich isn’t a clean bird, chickens, turkeys, peacocks, etc., probably aren’t either. Ellen G. White made no mention of chicken eggs being unfit for food. If chickens were unclean, their eggs would probably also be unclean.

If you had used the Protestant Bible, i.e., the King James Version (KJV), you would find that TWO birds with webbed feet were mentioned as being unfit for food; i.e., the swan and the pelican with no mention made of the ostrich. Even if you didn’t know pelicans have webbed feet you probably would have known that the swan does. If you believe that having webbed feet should be a distinguishing mark of an unclean bird, I would agree with you. It impacts me not a bit since I don’t eat any of them though I do eat eggs on occasion and would not eat duck, swan, pelican, puffin or sea gull eggs.

By the way, getting to eggs, you apparently believe vegan is the way to go. I agree that is a worthy goal though somewhat difficult to attain if you eat other people’s food. This is with the proviso that you have an alternate source of vitamin B12. In times past when things like manure was used to fertilize plants, there was probably enough bacterial contamination of vegetables to give you some vitamin B12. In the current state of things, you probably should eat eggs occasionally or take a B12 supplement unless you wish to become anemic and die early.

SatanIsDead.com

InfallibleBible.com

AdventistsToday.com

SabbathSchoolGuide.com